

Objections

WORKING WITH SOMEONE

I get it — a lot of people we talk to already are, and I'm not telling you to walk away from them. Here's my deal: if we look and it's a 500-dollar difference, I won't waste your time. If it's thousands, we're going over it. Fair? What did they quote you? (Pivot)

You committed to a lender — consider me the second look, no commitment. One of two things happens: I save you thousands, or you find out you already got the best deal and you stop wondering. Either way you win. What's the rate they gave you? (Pivot)

NOT INTERESTED / NOT INTERESTED ANYMORE

Understood — let me ask you this: what made you look into it in the first place? Was it the monthly payment or pulling cash out? (Get the original goal, then pivot into it.) (Pivot)

Fair enough — most people aren't interested until they see a real number. I'm not asking you to do anything today. What rate are you sitting at right now? If it's already good, I'll tell you that and get off the phone. (Pivot)

I ALREADY REFINANCED

Good — that means you're paying attention. What was available then isn't always what's available now, and some people are in a position to shorten the term or use equity instead. What rate did you land at? If it's strong, I'll say so. (Pivot)

WHY ARE YOU CALLING ME

Good question — you submitted a mortgage inquiry and it routed to us. That's the whole story. I'm not calling out of the blue, and I'm happy to note the file however you want. While I've got you: is your current rate something you'd improve if you could? (Pivot)

Never claim a bureau, servicer, or government agency sent us the file or referred you. We are a licensed brokerage following up on an inquiry. That is the only version of this answer.

I DON'T WANT MY CREDIT RUN

Understood. Nothing gets pulled without your say-so. Give me your ballpark score and I'll tell you what's realistic — if it's worth moving forward, we talk about a pull then, and you decide. What range are you in? (Pivot)

Never say "we already have your credit" or "we don't need to pull it" if a pull is coming. State plainly what will happen and when.

I DON'T WANT TO START OVER

That's a real concern — resetting to 30 years is how people lose money on a refi. Most of our clients keep the same term or shorten it. If the math only works by stretching you back out, I'll tell you it doesn't work. What term are you on now, and how many years in? (Pivot)

PRICE / RATE PRESSURE

"Just give me a number and I'll call you back." If I make up a number to get you off the phone, you'll compare it to something real and I'll look like a liar. Give me balance, rate, and ballpark score and I'll give you something you can actually hold me to. Balance first? (Pivot)
"Everyone says they can save me money."
They do — difference is I'm not one lender fitting you into one product. We run it against multiple and you take whoever wins. If nobody beats what you have, I'll say so. What are you at now? (Pivot)
"I'LL THINK ABOUT IT"
Sure — what specifically do you want to think about? (Silence. Do not fill it. Whatever they name is the real objection — handle that one, not this one.) If they won't name it: Fair enough. Most of the time "think about it" means the numbers didn't land or the timing's off. Which one is it for you? (Pivot) If they name a number: Then we're not thinking about it, we're comparing it. What are you at now and what did I quote you? (Pivot)
"THINGS ARE FINE THE WAY THEY ARE"
Then this is a five-minute call that confirms it and you never think about it again. But if rates moved and nobody told you, "fine" is costing you every month. What's your rate? (Pivot)
"SEND ME SOMETHING IN WRITING"
Happy to. What I send is only as good as what I put into it, so give me the balance and rate and you'll get real numbers instead of a brochure. Balance? (Pivot)
"I NEED TO TALK TO MY SPOUSE"
Absolutely, this should be a joint decision. Let's get the actual numbers so you're bringing them something real instead of "some guy called." When are you both around? (Pivot)
TAKE ME OFF THE LIST — THIS IS NOT AN OBJECTION
"Before I update your information, if I could put an option in front of you that actually benefited you, what would that look like?" Pivot lower rate or equity options